Expertise in Social Networks: How Do Experts Differ From Other Users?

Benjamin D. Horne, Dorit Nevo, Jesse Freitas, Heng Ji & Sibel Adalı

This paper contains a small mistake:

In Table 3, the feature names friends and followers was accidentally flipped. This slightly changes some of the results. Specifically, experts tend to have less friends, but more followers than their friends. The argument that experts may use friends as news sources is slightly weakened, but still valid looking at the language features.

All published datasets do not have this error. The error only occurs in Table 3 of the paper.
